

BYZANTINE-KYÏVAN
LITURGICAL CALENDAR
AM 7533 / AD 2024-25

GLORY TO JESUS CHRIST! It is our pleasure to present the Society of Saint John Chrysostom liturgical calendar. This conveniently lists the feasts, fasts and liturgical readings for each day of the year according to the Kyïvan recension of the Byzantine rite, celebrated by the Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church (UGCC) and according to the Gregorian calendar, followed in our monthly Divine Liturgy in English at Holy Family Cathedral, London.

As with all Christian calendars, the Byzantine calendar follows the movements and rhythms of Creation along two intersecting cycles: lunar and solar. The former revolves around Pascha, the great feast of feasts, while the latter is bookended by the equinox and solstice of the Incarnation: the Annunciation and the Nativity, both of which have served as New Year's Day at various times and places in European history. These cycles are reflected in the two sets of readings for each day of the year: one moveable and one fixed. In some traditions it is customary to chant both sets of readings at the Divine Liturgy each day but, as this is generally done in the UGCC only for feasts ranked Class III and above, we have reflected this as the option in our listings. Likewise, days with feasts ranked Class II and above are generally listed without the moveable readings of the day, owing to the dignity of the feast, except on Sundays. And, unlike the Roman rite, the Byzantine year begins not on the first Sunday of Advent but on 1 September, which was New Year's Day in the Byzantine Empire from 537 to 1453.

The Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church is at once universal, particular and local, and this is reflected in the variety of feasts in this calendar. Most great feasts of our Lord and the Mother of God are universal and well known to Latin Catholics and Christians of other traditions. Many of the feasts listed derive from the Great Church of Constantinople, from which the Metropolis of Kyïv sprang; others come from the shared tradition of Kyïvan Rus', while some are unique to the UGCC. In transliterating their Greek and Slavic names we have sought to strike a balance between authenticity and legibility. For biblical personages, the common English forms have been retained. As the Society is based in the United Kingdom, we have also included saints and commemorations native to Britain and Ireland. These feasts are marked with a Chi-Rho Christogram ✠. The months are given in English with the Anno Domini year, and in Church Slavonic with the Anno Mundi year in Cyrillic numerals.

Finally, a word about fasting, as practice differs in the East and West. In Latin Christianity the obligation to fast has been penitential in nature and enforced 'on pain of sin'. In recent times it has relaxed or adapted to different circumstances across the world and society. In Byzantine Christianity fasting is more extensive and frequent, but understood as an ideal towards which to strive. In both traditions, fasting taken together with prayer and almsgiving, helps us to conquer our passions and advance on the path to union with God, or theosis. The fasting rule in this calendar is from the fifth-century typikon of Venerable Sabbas the Sanctified, which remains the primary point of reference for East Slavic liturgical life. The rule prescribes xerophagy ('dry eating') for most Wednesdays and Fridays of the year, in which no meat, eggs, dairy, fish, oil or wine are consumed, and nothing at all until the evening meal, or at least the ninth hour (around 3pm). This is also observed daily throughout the Great Fast (Lent), the Apostles' Fast, the Dormition Fast and the Nativity Fast, although fish, oil and wine are permitted for certain feasts and days, depending on the feast or season. The rule is austere and rarely observed in its entirety, but is included here as a 'gold standard' from which we can adapt our practice to account for personal circumstances, health, and spiritual development.

Ukrainian Greek Catholics are only canonically obliged to abstain from meat products on Fridays (except in fast-free periods) and from meat and dairy products on Holy Cross, Christmas Eve, Theophany Eve, Clean Monday, Great & Holy Friday and the Beheading of Saint John the Baptist. Christ tells us to show joy when we fast, so we should avoid being pharisaical and remember that 'the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life!' (2 Cor. 3:6) and 'abstinence from food by itself is insufficient for praiseworthy fasting... shunning vices makes fasting good'. Equally, however, 'the more you deny the flesh, the more you render the soul radiant with spiritual health.' (Saint Basil the Great, Homily II on Fasting) ✠
